"Dassault Systemes' 3D technology integrated with IBM Workplace Client Technology is a great illustration of how innovative companies will be able to capitalize on their existing investments leveraging the right PLM based on XML. Its impact goes far beyond manufacturing industry as 3DXML and IBM's Workplace Client becomes fundamental for collaboration" –

Dominique Florack, Dassault Systemes EVP Research & Development

The screenshot displays the IBM Lotus Workplace environment. At the top, the title bar reads "IBM Lotus Workplace" and the menu bar includes "File Edit View Actions Tools Help". Below this, a banner for "Dassault Systems 3D For All" is visible, along with "IBM Workplace Services" and a search bar. The main workspace is titled "H Car" and contains a 3D CAD model of a car body. A file explorer on the left shows a tree structure under "Products" with folders like "CarBody", "Hood", "Wing", "Roof", "Door", "RadiatorGrill", and "FrontBumper". A toolbar above the model includes icons for Save, New, Open, and Zoom (set to 100%). The right-hand side features a "Properties" panel for "H Car.3DML" with details such as "Type: 3DML Document", "Created: 01/26/04 9:40 AM", "Owner: William Hunt", "Modified: 07/15/05 09:50 AM", "Checker: Marie Dupont", "Project: H Car", and "Organization: Consumer". Below the properties is an "Instant Contacts" list with groups like "Work (1)" and "Technical Round Table (3)". The bottom of the window shows a standard Windows taskbar with various application icons and a system tray area with the "ENOVIA" logo and "Online" status.

IBM Workplace Collaboration Services
